FYI--forwarding you an email Kyle sent me yesterday. The lack of prospects/enrollment in Food Service Technology is a surprise to me. Is there any way Kathy is misinterpreting the info from Maria and Griselda? I will try to ask KB about it today. Thanks.

Another example of why we need a proactive team approach.

I'm keeping an eye on everyone's registration process and numbers as we move closer to fall start date and Food Service is not good. Going back in the Spring we had no students as Coby was retooling the program, summer has 4 students, to date we do not have anyone registered for the fall. This is the information I received from Maria and Griselda this morning about the folks they are currently working. If I am reading this information correctly, we have no students ready for registration or remotely close.

[REDACTED] his bacterial meningitis vaccine is being questioned by admissions so I must get that clarified with Joni Coons before he can registered. Also, he is working the financial aid process and will not be registered until he has a plan.

[REDACTED] waiting for financial aid to be finalized. She had a few hiccups but is aware of what is needed to finish her process.

[REDACTED] has completed some of the admissions requirements but not all as of yet. She also has some issues with financial aid, in her case she had some default issues and must get those resolved before being eligible for aid.

██████████ toured but never heard from her again and at this time has not been reachable.

There are other names such as ██████████ ██████████ those come to mind right away - that have shown interest but are yet to complete anything.

I forwarded 4 other names to Coby last night to look at but two of the names go too far back in the PMT system I don't think we will get anything on them. The other has some financial aid issues. I spent part of yesterday and today weeding through all the names on the prospect list for Culinary Arts to see if we had anyone that lived close to Sweetwater or may be willing to drive there for classes. Not much luck there either. I will forward the names of some others to Griselda to work for Coby. At this point, with no one registered and no one looking good to go into the system how long does TSTC want to see if this model works?

Kathy
